1. Project Overview

Elevate Spaces CRM is a web-based client management dashboard designed for a small interior design agency. The agency manages multiple leads, clients, projects, site visits, tasks, and follow-ups.

The CRM centralizes important business information in one place, helping the team track enquiries from the first contact to conversion, manage active client relationships, monitor project progress, and avoid missed tasks or follow-ups.

2. Target Users

The dashboard is designed for:

- Agency owners
- Interior designers
- Project coordinators
- Small agency team members

The interface is structured for frequent daily use and provides quick access to leads, clients, tasks, and upcoming follow-ups.

3. Workflow Logic

The main CRM workflow follows:

New Lead → Contacted → Site Visit → Proposal → Won → Active Client

Once a lead is converted, the client can be managed through the Client List and Client Profile screens. The Tasks & Follow-ups screen helps the team manage daily work and maintain regular communication with clients.

4. Key Screens

Dashboard

The Dashboard provides a quick overview of the agency's daily operations. Summary cards display new leads, site visits, active projects, and total clients.

The screen also includes a lead pipeline, today's tasks, and upcoming follow-ups so users can identify priorities without opening multiple pages.

Leads & Pipeline

The Leads screen uses a visual status-based pipeline with the stages New Lead, Contacted, Site Visit, Proposal, and Won.

This structure helps the agency understand where each potential client is in the sales process and identify leads that require follow-up.

Client List

The Client List organizes active clients in a structured table. Important details such as project type, engagement status, last contact, and next action are visible at a glance.

Search and filter controls support faster client management as the number of clients grows.

Client Profile

The Client Profile provides detailed information about an individual client. It includes contact information, engagement status, project value, project progress, and recent activity.

This screen helps team members understand the complete client relationship without searching through separate messages or documents.

Tasks & Follow-ups

The Tasks & Follow-ups screen centralizes daily work management. Summary cards show tasks due today, overdue tasks, upcoming work, and completed tasks.

The task tracker displays the client, deadline, priority, and status of each task. A separate follow-up section highlights upcoming calls, site visits, and proposal reviews.

5. UX Decisions

The design uses a persistent left sidebar to provide consistent navigation across all screens. The most important information is placed at the top of each page to support quick scanning.

Cards are used for summaries and key information, while tables and pipeline layouts are used for structured business data. Status indicators and priority colors help users identify important information quickly.

The layout is designed to remain scalable as the agency gains more leads, clients, and projects.

6. Visual Design

The interface uses a burgundy and blush-pink color palette inspired by the existing Elevate Spaces brand identity.

The design maintains consistent:

- Navigation
- Card styles

- Rounded corners
- Typography
- Spacing
- Status indicators

The visual style aims to balance a professional B2B SaaS dashboard with the creative identity of an interior design agency.

7. Real-World Use Case

A small interior design agency can use Elevate Spaces CRM to:

- Track new enquiries
- Move leads through different sales stages
- Manage active client relationships
- Monitor project progress
- Plan daily tasks
- Schedule follow-ups
- Reduce missed communication

By bringing these workflows into one dashboard, the CRM helps the agency work more efficiently and maintain a better client experience.

8. Conclusion

Elevate Spaces CRM was designed around real agency workflows rather than individual standalone screens. The goal was to create a clear and practical system that connects lead management, client relationships, project visibility, tasks, and follow-ups.

The final design demonstrates workflow-based thinking, scalable dashboard organization, and B2B SaaS UX principles.
